The Trumpeter Swan is a symbol of hope that a species can be restored!

Help write the story of hope of a species' return from the brink of extinction. Please donate to the Adopt a Swan program today.

We are the ONE conservation organization directly working to help this majestic species. We have the knowledge, continent-wide vision and commitment to restore this magnificent bird. Your Adopt A Swan gift will help address swan health and habitat threats.

For nearly 50 years, we have been involved in virtually every restoration program and significant management decision affecting swans. Trumpeter Swans are indicators of healthy wetlands. Where they thrive so do countless other wetland plant and animal species.

Please help swans today. They need YOU.

Trumpeter Swans NEED us all.

Adoptions are symbolic.

How your “adoption” helps swans

Trumpeter Swans have returned to about 1/3 of their historic range, thanks to the restoration efforts of states and provinces.

Kim Stevenson

They still face a number of threats. In the west, there is a growing scarcity of winter habitat, and low reproductive rates in the U.S. Rocky Mountain Population.

Margaret Smith

Across North America, powerline collisions and lead poisoning (photo left) are threats to swan health and survival. Keep wildlife safe by switching to nontoxic fishing tackle and ammunition.

Your Adopt A Swan donation protects habitat and helps swans stay safe and healthy!
